Carlile drivers featured in History Channel's new 2009 season

On May 31 the History Channel's season premiere of Ice Road Truckers features the Alaska Truckers of Carlile Transportation Systems. The 2009 season focuses on the challenges faced on the Haul Road and the ice roads of the North Slope of Alaska.

The season opens by challenging the industry to deliver 6,000 loads of freight to the oil camps of Alaska's North Slope in just 12 weeks. Tackling the 500-plus mile stretch from Fairbanks to the remote outpost of Deadhorse, with unexpected weather, virtual whiteouts and treacherous terrain like the truckers have never seen before.

The Alaska chapter of Ice Road Truckers strongly emphasizes the importance of safety preparedness. Safety in the workplace is absolutely a priority and drives operation decisions at the core of our company. Carlile enforces a zero tolerance policy for any inappropriate driving performance.
